

Reinvestment, the right way!

The underfinancing of the postsecondary education network is at an alarming level. To alleviate the lack of money, ancillary fees are rising, there are talks of unfreezing tuition, and private businesses are allowed to commodify education.

We, the students, refuse that this clientelist logic creep in education. Because education is a right, we must collectively ensure its accessibility and its quality. To that end, we take position for a « Reinvestment, the right way! »

The following three demands must take priority and be immediately considered seriously:

- Free education at all levels
- Improvement of resources and services in post-secondary education, with the goal of a quality education, free from private intervention.
- The promotion of an accessible and flexible public childcare system in postsecondary educational institutions, with hours matching class schedules in order to help students accomodate family life and studies.

Take notice: if the government doesn't respond favorably to this demand before November 27, 2006, we will escalate our actions to make our voices heard.
